SINGAPORE, 25 July 2017 – An active supporter of the arts and culture in Singapore, The Fullerton Hotels Singapore, part of The Fullerton Heritage’s seven properties, celebrate local authors this National Reading Day on 29 July 2017. In collaboration with BooksActually – a Singapore-based independent bookstore, The Fullerton Hotel Singapore and The Fullerton Bay Hotel Singapore will be introducing books authored by local writers and poets to guests. The curated literary titles will be available in both hotels’ suites, The Fullerton Shop and The Fullerton Boutique, a lifestyle boutique located in the lobbies of The Fullerton Hotel Singapore and The Fullerton Bay Hotel Singapore respectively.

General Manager of The Fullerton Heritage, Cavaliere Giovanni Viterale hopes the inclusion of these books under The Fullerton Arts Programme will provide a more enriching experience for guests: “We invite guests to enjoy the vibrancy of the precinct, and with the convenience of the books in their suites, they can continue to be captivated by the tales of Singapore and her people as they take respite from the hustle and bustle of the city.”

Through a thorough curation process, three books titled Balik Kampung 2A, Dreaming Cities and The Desire For Elsewhere, have been shortlisted for the 28 suites in The Fullerton Hotel Singapore and six suites in The Fullerton Bay Hotel Singapore. These browsing copies invite guests to immerse in stories of Singapore in the comfort of their rooms. These books along with an additional title, Yesteryears, will be available for

The Fullerton Arts Programme plays an active role in promoting local talents by providing them visibility for their works. ## APPENDIX A

BALIK KAMPUNG 2A: PEOPLE AND PLACES

Anthology edited by Verena Tay

Balik Kampung 2A: People and Places presents eleven new tales by authors who have lived in the respective neighbourhoods for at least ten years. What was it like to grow up in a particular district of Singapore during a specific decade? How can you go for a peaceful walk around your home if the area is being constantly remodelled by demolition and construction? How do present perceptions of space contrast with memory? Such questions fill the various stories that are inhabited with vivid characters and strong portrayals of different locales. If you wish to discover new perspectives about parts of Singapore that you may or may not have previously been aware of, then read this book.

DREAMING CITIES

By Eddie Tay

In this book, poems and street photographs dream of the modern city, laying a poetic geography over the urban landscapes of Hong Kong and Singapore.

Born in Singapore, Eddie Tay is a long time resident of Hong Kong. He is an associate professor at the Department of English at the Chinese University of Hong Kong, where he teaches courses on street photography, creative writing and poetry. He is also the reviews editor of Cha, an online literary journal based in Hong Kong. This is his fourth collection of poetry.

THE DESIRE FOR ELSEWHERE

By Agnes Chew

A girl who nearly meets with death while on board a plane from Paris to Marrakech; a boy who fills her arms with paper animals under the open skies of rural China; her doppelgänger whom she meets in the Middle East; a question she was once asked, and the answer she only finds three years after.

The Desire For Elsewhere takes you on an intimate journey to explore the interiors of the museum of the narrator's being, where otherwise ordinary artefacts reveal the stories they contain within. Travelling to the past, parallel planets, and the future, it tells a story of stories that explores the universal themes of love and loss, time and transience, and travel and wanderlust.

Enchanting and evocative, the tales of Agnes Chew transport you to places that run on lost time, missed opportunities, and deep-rooted aspirations. These are voyages fuelled by a sense of nostalgia, possibility, and hope. Ultimately, this debut collection raises fundamental questions on the ways in which we live our lives.

YESTERYEARS

A photo publication by Sean Cham

Yesteryears captures 50 abandoned and forgotten buildings in Singapore through a series of in situ self-portraits. The buildings photographed are in different states of ruination, from the crumbling roofs of Istana Woodneuk to the soon-to-be demolished Rochor Centre. These buildings represent the modern ruins of post independence Singapore, an era that lives not only with progress but also the fleeting ruins left in its wake. In a city that is ever modernizing and growing, there is barely any room for the ruin. Buildings that are deemed obsolete will be torn down to make way for something bigger and better. But in the face of the storm called progress, as German philosopher Walter Benjamin expounded in 'Thesis on the Philosophy of History', it is important to retain our historical consciousness. Yesteryears does this not through monuments, or officially sanctioned heritage spaces, but through the more minor, often forgotten ruins created by an ever-changing Singapore.
