Bookers

This bourbon is not for the weak. A very complex and intense nose that runs from oak, leather, caramel and hints of fruits continues on the tongue with a very pleasant burn that gives way to more leather, oak vanilla and spice. It's a bourbon with a bite and should be bloomed with some water $15

1792 (Bottled in Bond)

This straight Kentucky bourbon whiskey is "from barrels all filled during the same season was bottled at exactly 100 proof." The color of a rich wildflower honey. It thinly coats and clings to the glass. Warm and full, and more mouth-forward. The aromas are brought through in the flavour, with a layered maple and coffee-toffee sweetness and oak grounded by an earthy quality. The finish lingers, with a smooth yet spicy and savory buzz $12

Jefferson's

Made from 4 bourbon blend. Nose is rather light with vanilla, yeast and farm notes. Palate is smooth with a nice, slightly oily mouthfeel. Notes of buttered and peppered corn and caramel come across. Finishes with honey and oak $10

Jefferson's Ocean

This was an experiment by the owner of Jefferson's. He put three barrels in the hold of a ship for three years. The result was that more whisky came in contact with the barrel bringing out the caramel from the wood. The sea air impacted the flavor as well bringing a brininess to the liquid. It has been a huge success for Jefferson's. Now a barrel of Jefferson's Ocean will cross the equator at least four times and have over thirty ports of call! $18
